(Literature)

- 8 (a)
- (i) 'Their dreams' drip with murder because they want to avenge the death of their friends who died in the war. But they can't / help
  - (ii) The man (WWI) that they fought shattered their pride. It resulted in death and destruction, they had never wanted.
  - (iii) The figure of speech used in the above extract is 'Metaphor.'
  - (iv) The two contrasting feelings depicted in the soldier's expressions are that they go for battle 'grim and glad' but return like children 'broken and mad'. They suffer and witness death and destruction.

(v) 'Neuresthaenia' turned the men who went out to battle into children. They had disconnected talk, were learning to walk and also stammered while talking.

b (i) The above extract is from the poem 'Curtain' by 'Helen Spalding'.

(ii) The 'disaster' in the above extract is the self imposed separation of the two lovers.

(iii) The two ghosts are the two separated lovers. They are called ghosts because they will exist as ghosts, invisible to each other and the world.

(iv) The two worlds have grown apart because 'there is no touch now'. The lovers have decided to part ways and the 'wave of togetherness' has broken.

(v) The poet uses the expression 'two Hamlets, two soliloquies' because the character Hamlet is associated with indecision. The two lovers also, after their self imposed separation will exist in two different worlds like two Hamlets and will have two soliloquies because they are no longer together.

(b) The White family was not a superstitious family. Even when told about the Monkey's Paw Herbert (Mr. White's son) dismissed it as a 'fancy' and Mr. White also chose not to believe in the ~~Scary~~ at its story. Mrs. White on the other hand wanted 'nothing to do with it'. She was disgusted at the sight of the Paw. While Herbert dies still not believing in the power's of the Monkey's Paw jokingly calling it 'stiff and nonsense'; Mr and ~~Mrs~~ White's view changes after his first wish for £200 is granted.

- (i) In 'The Judgement of Paris' Suzanne left the judgement to the public because both Robichon and Quinquant were such good actors that 'no critic or the press could decide who the better actor was.' Yes, I think justice was done because Suzanne wanted to marry 'the better actor' and they hence had to prove themselves in serious roles; and Quinquant did just that. His execution <sup>impersonation</sup> of the role of Marquise de Thévenin was so exceptional that even his friend could not recognise him. True that while 'Robichon had duped an audience Quinquant duped Robichon himself.' Hence the public i.e. Paris awarded the Palm to Quinquant.

- (ii) In 'The Last Letter', 'Pandit Jawahar Lal Nehru' says "danger seems terrible from a distance : it is not so bad if you have a closer look at it." because danger adds to the zest and real value of life. It makes one value the things one has. There are many people who risk their lives to climb mountains just to experience the thrill and exhilaration that comes with a danger ~~overcome~~ over come. One's percept perceptions becomes keener and one learns to appreciate life. Danger teaches us to give up living in the 'secure valleys below' and take in the 'pure mountain air above.'

(b) In a conservative society a son / daughter is supposed to respect his / her parents, look after them when they are ill, fulfill their wishes and do as they want what they say is best for you.

In a 'Devoted Son' Anil Desai has made Rakesh most perfect child which every mother desires and every father is proud to talk about. For his parents he is the 'pearl amongst pearls.'

On securing the first rank in the country and also on

O returning from the U.S.A., Rakesh bows down to touch his father's feet; the first thing. He marries the girl of his mother's choice. On buying a new car, he takes his parents out for a drive first.

even after becoming the 'best and richest' doctor in town' he ministers looks after his mother when she is ill. After his best mother dies, he takes utmost care of his father, bringing tea in his 'favourite brass mug', 'reading the newspaper' for him and wanting his father to get the best medicines so that he returns to health. His character definitely conforms to the perceptions of a conservative society.

11. The central character of the novel, 'The Invisible Man', 'Griffin' is an exceptionally talented scientist who discovers a way to lower the refractive index of the body and make things invisible. His discovery is revolutionary and he could have won accolades the world over.

But Griffin chooses to make himself invisible, his mind teeming with 'all that he now had impunity to do.' He did not see any disadvantages in his plan and hence set out to establish a 'Reign of Terror': like physical invisibility, he became emotionally invisible as well.

He started robbing people, the first one being his own father, killing his friends, blackmailing them into working for him. He became a recluse: a detached animal who could do anything for his gain. He has the potential to be a very famous scientist but his thoughts make him an 'absurd possibility.' He meets with a dreadful end.

Invisible Man's

Through the journey, the author wants to caution society and its people to use science positively and for the benefit of all. Humanity should never be forgotten however great a person or his/her discovery is. One cannot look to achieve anything at the cost of others.

Dear Sir/Madam

I had ordered an iPod, a digital watch (Fastrack), a DELL Inspiron Tablet and a calculator. My receipt no. is 5461800. I regret to convey that out of all the devices I had ordered only the calculator functions properly. The details of the problems with the other devices are:

- Firstly,
1. The ~~hour hand of the~~ day, date function of the watch does not work. It shows the same day and date.
  2. Secondly, the advertisement claims that the watch displays 7 colours! But the one I have received displays only 2.
  3. Thirdly there is some problem in the earphones that I received with the ipod. There is no sound in one of them.

'A healthy mind dwells in a healthy body.'

IMPORTANCE OF SPORTS

by XYZ (Sports Captain)

'A healthy mind dwells in a healthy body.' Good morning to one and all present here. Today I am here to share my views on sports and their importance in our lives. From the time when we are merely kids, we are told to do well in studies and told that playing and going out is important but studies more so.

Over the years, this belief becomes even stronger. We learn to use gadgets like the mobile phone, ipad, computers and then there is no need to go out and play for one can play virtual games all day long. In my tenure as the sports captain of the school I have seen a steep decline in the number of students opting for sports activities and that bothers me.

The many advantages of physical activity are known to all yet we choose to ignore them. I would like to tell you that in todays time being fit and fine is more important than ever before and with various kinds of diseases on the rise it is becoming more and more difficult everyday. Sports ~~do~~ not only provide physical fitness they provide emotional stability as well. They imbibe in you sportsmanship, make you capable of dealing with wins and ~~losses~~ alike.

Playing a sport helps you learn how to work as a team, become disciplined, focussed and set goals. It also helps you perform better in academics. It is important to study and relax, but it is also important to get out and play. Our country ~~can do with our~~ needs exceptional sportsmen to excel at the international level. So today make a promise to yourself that you will avail all the sports opportunities the school has to offer, and get out and play for a "Better YOU and a BETTER WORLD."

Suggestions ??

Thank You.

ANOTHER MEMORIAL ??

by Reema.

Recently the government of India declared that they would ~~also~~ make the tallest statue in the world of Sardar ~~Vallab~~ Patel and fix it on the banks of the Sabarmati because they want to pay their gratitude to him and because he served the nation selflessly. The question that pops in one's head is why now? and why only Sardar Patel?

If they are talking about service to the nation, there are many more leaders like Pandit Nehru, Bhagat Singh, Lala Lajpat Rai, Subhash Chandra Bose; and the list is endless.

the government feels,

why is it that we can only remember our leaders if there is a street or town named after them or if a memorial has been constructed? The best way to remember somebody is by imbibing their thoughts and ideologies in one's way of life. Mahatma Gandhi is a man who lived on frugal means would come out as a ghost if he knew that the government spent some crores of the tax-payers money on a statue for him.

Unnecessary expenditure on such things is surely wasteful. The government ~~faces~~ faces money crunch for implementing policies for the welfare of people, they how can they have millions for memorials. "Statues turn to dust", it is the "idea or fancy that survives." The government can undertake more welfare measures in the ~~no~~ name of such great leaders. It will be a better way of remembering them.

Try to fulfill the vision of these leaders; make our country a literate nation, free from poverty, where every person has equal rights and opportunities. Grant funds in the names of these leaders to schemes like MNREGA, the Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan or the Bachpan Bachao Andolan. These leaders dreamt of a wonderful glorious India, take small steps to that India, and we promise assure you we'll remember them.
